CALL FOR PAPERS

The Inter-American Defense College (IADC) extends an invitation to all who would like to contribute scientific articles for the periodical published by our center for advanced studies.

Hemisferio, the official IADC journal, is devoted to promoting research in areas related Western Hemispheric security and defense. It is an annual publication, which is non-profit and presents a multidisciplinary approach, associated with the College advanced studies program.

The broad spectrum of subject areas contributes to the analysis of security and defense related challenges from diverse perspectives including: Strategic Thinking, International Relations, Political Economy, Future Studies Methodologies, Geopolitics, Human Rights, Civil-Military Relations, Multidimensional Security, Cybersecurity, Defense and Security Policies, Development, Leadership, and Conflict Analysis and Resolution.

Submissions to the Hemisferio Journal must be made through our online portal at https://hemisferio.iadc.edu/index.php/hemisferio by April 30th, 2025. Detailed submission guidelines and editorial standards can be found on the portal. Upon submission, you will receive a confirmation email. Articles that meet the editorial criteria will undergo a blind peer-review process, and final decisions will be communicated within 30 days. The editorial team sincerely appreciates your interest in contributing to our journal.

The editorial staff of Hemisferio would like to thank you in advance for considering our journal for publishing your research topics of interest.

Information for authors

Editorial policy at Hemisferio requires that all submissions for publication be original and unpublished texts, and each author is responsible for not incurring any liability associated with falsifying or copying data that may compromise the authenticity of the research. The submissions for publication must also comply with the following editorial standards:

1. The title of the article must be submitted in upper and lowercase text (without the full text in uppercase) and the executive summary should be less than 150 words.

2. Include up to 5 key words after the summary.

3. Use 8.5″ x 11″ size paper.

4. Use "Times New Roman" 12-point font, with 1.5 spacing.

5. Notes (citations) use simple spacing, "Times New Roman" 10- point font. (Only the first line of each citation should be indented 0.25").

6. Both the bibliography and the citations should follow the Chicago Style of references (see the enclosed Chicago Style Guide). In Chicago style, citations for AI-generated content should be included as footnotes or in-text parenthetical citations, not in the final bibliography. To cite correctly, include the AI's name, date of use, and if the prompt is not mentioned in the text, the question asked should also be included. The basic format for a footnote is: "Text generated by [AI name], [date], [company], [optional URL]". For parenthetical citations, use the format ([AI name], [date]). It is important to note that AI citations are treated as personal communications and only need to be mentioned in the text or footnotes.

7. The articles submitted can be in English, Spanish, Portuguese, or French.

8. Articles should be between 5,000 and 8,000 words long.

9. In our editorial policy for receiving and publishing academic articles using Artificial Intelligence (AI), we establish that authors must explicitly disclose the use of AI and AI-assisted technologies in their manuscripts, including a specific declaration in the published work. Generative AI and assisted technologies should only be used to improve the readability and language of the work, always under human supervision and control. Authors maintain full responsibility for the content and must carefully review the results to avoid inaccuracies or biases generated by AI. It is crucial to emphasize that AI and its associated technologies cannot be listed as authors or co-authors, as authorship is exclusively a human responsibility.

Authors must complete the letter of authorization and accept the rules of publication, as well as the code of ethics.
